MY HOUSE BESIDE THE ROAD.

(Mother's Ideal—"He was a friend to man, and lived in a house beside the road.")

"There are hermit souls that live withdrawn."

In the place of their selfish content,
There are souls like stars, that dwell apart.

In a fellowship of earnestness,
There are souls that blaze their path.

Where highways never ran,
But let me live by the side of the road,

And be a friend to man.

"Let me live in my house by the side of the road,

Where the race of men go by;
The men that are good and the men that are bad,

I would not sit in the corner's seat,
Or hurt the cycle's ban;

Let me live in a house by the side of the road,

And be a friend to man.

"I see from my house by the side of the road,

By the side of the highway of life,
The men who press with the ardor of hope,

The men who faint with the strife,
But I turn not away from their smiles or their tears,

Both parts of an infinite plan;
Let me live in my house by the side of the road,

And be a friend to man.

"I know there are brook-gladdened meadows ahead,

And mountains of wearisome height;
And the road passes through the long afternoon,

And stretches away to the night,
But still I rejoice when the travelers rejoice,

And weep with the strangers that roam,
Nor live in my house by the side of the road,

Like a man who dwells alone.

"Let me live in my house by the side of the road,

Where the race of men go by;
They are good, they are bad; they are weak, they are strong;

Wise, foolish, and so am I.
Then why should I sit in the corner's seat,

Or hurt the cycle's ban?
Let me live in my house by the side of the road,

And be a friend to man."
—S. W. Foss.

THE MUCKRAKER STYLE.

The work of the muckraker and professional "exposer" has come to be a staple among American literary productions. It has reached the point where it has formed a distinct style of composition. The writing of the "exposer" is so uniform that one can pick it out in the magazine without looking at the title of the article. Here is a little sample snatched at random from a current publication.

"Who, then, is free? That's a live question in this great, 'free country' of ours. Who's free from the pressure of financial power? And the answer is—nobody. There are lots of people who think they are free. They never feel 'it' so they don't know that they are 'it' subjects. The young Easterner didn't; his bride didn't; Judge Lindsey didn't; none of the reformers of Deliver four or five words. Such composition as this has a natural tendency to suggest a man tearing out his hair while gasping for breath.

Then examine the facts and figures. Paragraph after paragraph one will wander along without getting anything definite. The words "money power" in the paragraph cited are in capital letters. There is no such thing as "money power." It could not be indicated in the courts. There are, however, various companies whose sanctifications lead to small groups of stockholders. The daily press frequently deals with the situation, but always specifically. The real facts are fairly well known. They could not be otherwise. They are matters of great public interest. This excited form of journalism certainly does not enlighten those who wish to know how to proceed. It seems rather to be intended solely to increase the excitement of those who can never be depended upon to assist in righting matters. Those whose only activity in any great crisis is to stand by one side and wave their hands or furnish the mob scene when something is really happening—San Antonio Express.

THANKSGIVING DAY.

The observance of Thanksgiving Day will no doubt be quite general, finding expression along religious and social lines. It is met and proper that while there should be instant appreciation of the good fortune that comes to us all, as individuals, each day, at least, in the year should be emphasized by special gratitude and recognition of Divine wisdom, mercy and power. Some men tell us they cannot recognize the hand of God any more, save in the manifestations and expressions of Nature. With such men one should have no quarrel because of such a view, but criticism because of difference of opinion. Shall any of us sit in judgment on a fellow man because of belief or non-belief? By no means. But for many, perhaps for most of us, it is a consoling and an uplifting thought that Divine love and wisdom do exert influence in shaping the trend of our lives, to give us strength and light to make the best of the earthly existence, and by earnest devotion make life happier and better worth the living for us and our loved ones, for our fellow-men. God does not always shower good things or even useful things upon us. As a rule we are expected to strive for, to endeavor to obtain and attain those things that are the best of life, and that is the Law of Life, and it is good and wise because of living by it. But should gratitude be lacking on that account—because blessings do not come until we seek for and try to merit them? Their abundance is none the less marked, and taken in connection with what may be called the natural blessings of most human beings to call for recognition and sincere gratitude. And that is why, as a people, we have organized and established a day of general thanksgiving.

And in making recognition of the services that come to us can we honor the giver of All Good more than by recognition of the needs of those of our fellow-men or women who may know want or sorrow? There is opportunity all around us to do that. The man who lives unto himself, who has no eye or ear of thought for the needs of a fellow human being, who merits compassion can not be a man who tries to live near to God.—Waco Tribune.

PRISCILLA CLUB.

Met Yesterday Afternoon With Mrs. J. W. McMakin.

The Priscilla club had a very pleasant meeting yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. J. W. McMakin, on South Wesley street. Roll call was responded to with Thanksgiving quotations. It was decided that next Wednesday shall be a Feast Day, and will meet with Mrs. Lewis, of Church street.

After an hour spent in embroidery the hostess served dainty refreshment of brain salad, olives, wafers, coffee and cake. Each lady was presented with a chrysanthemum, the club flower.

PUBLIC MEETING.

To Consider the White Slave Traffic, a National Danger.

The white slave traffic is to be further considered. The meeting at the Central Christian church on last Sunday afternoon was a success. Elder J. H. Woodruff delivered a splendid address exposing the dangers of the white slave traffic.

A large and representative audience was present and all were profoundly impressed with the magnitude of the evil. There will be at the First Baptist church Friday night, Nov. 25th, at 7:30 o'clock a mass meeting to further consider this vital matter and it is hoped that the citizens of Greenville, both men and women will be on hand to assist. A great national disaster threatens us, the evil reaches not only the cities, but extends to every village and hamlet. Come out and hear the facts.

Home Mission Society.

The Home Mission society of Wesley church will meet Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the church, with the following program:

Devotional—Mrs. T. J. Amos.

Roll call—Verses on the Word.

Our literature—Our Home and Child's Message—Mrs. Lizzie Mitchell.
